

can you give the answers in a more descriptive way

NATIS (National Traffic Information System) and RA (Roads Authority) in Namibia manage critical transport services like vehicle registration and road safety. Expanding the previous list, here are the same common chatbot questions with more detailed, step-by-step answers to better suit a RAG system. These draw from official processes to guide users comprehensively. [1] [2]

Vehicle Registration & Licensing

- What documents do I need for new vehicle registration?

For a brand-new or imported vehicle, gather your valid ID or passport, two recent passport photos, proof of residential address (like a utility bill), the original vehicle purchase invoice or sales agreement, a valid roadworthy certificate from an authorized testing station, and customs clearance papers if imported. Head to your nearest NaTIS office, submit everything at the counter, undergo a vehicle inspection if required, pay the registration fee (starting around N$200 plus licensing), and receive your registration certificate, number plates, and license disc on the spot or after processing. [3] [1]

- How do I renew my vehicle license?

Vehicle licenses expire annually, typically at month-end. For convenience, use RA's online portal by emailing online.enatis@ra.org.na with your vehicle disc number, registration details, and proof of payment (via bank deposit to RA's account). Alternatively, visit a NaTIS office in person with your ID, current license disc, and proof of address; staff will verify no outstanding fines, process renewal, and issue a new disc. Always renew before expiry to avoid penalties, and note that heavy vehicles may need weighbridge clearance first. [4] [5] [6]

- What if my license disc is lost?

Immediately report the loss to the police for an affidavit, then visit NaTIS with your ID, vehicle registration certificate (logbook), the police affidavit, and a completed duplicate application form. Pay the N$50 fee (cash or card at most offices), and staff will verify details before printing a replacement disc, usually same-day service unless system issues arise. [3]

- How much is vehicle licensing?

Fees depend on vehicle type, engine capacity, and tare weight—for example, sedans under 1500cc might cost N$1,000–N$1,500 annually, while trucks are higher (N$5,000+). Download the full 2026 tariff schedule from ra.org.na/downloads, factor in any arrears or fines, and budget for roadworthy tests (N$300–N$500 extra if needed). Fees are non-refundable and must be paid upfront. [7]

- Can I change vehicle ownership?

Both buyer and seller must attend NaTIS together with IDs/passports, the original registration certificate, a roadworthy certificate (valid 30 days), purchase agreement/affidavit of sale, and proof of settled fines. The seller signs over ownership, buyer pays transfer duty (around 1–2% of value) plus fees, and new plates/disc issue immediately if all clear.<sup>[1]</sup>

Driver Licensing & Testing

- How do I get a learner's license?

You must be at least 16 years old. Book an appointment at a NaTIS testing center (like Windhoek Lafrenz), bring your ID, proof of address, two passport photos, and pay the fee (N$100–N$200). Pass an eye test and 30-question theory exam on road rules (70% pass mark); if successful, get your learner's permit valid for 2 years, allowing supervised driving.<sup>[2] [5]</sup>

- What's required for a driver's license test?

Hold a valid learner's for at least 6 months, then book a practical test (yard maneuvers + 45-minute road drive) via phone or at NaTIS. Arrive with learner's permit, test vehicle (insured, roadworthy, dual controls if code B), and fee. Pass both to receive your probationary license (code A/B/C based on vehicle class), valid 2 years before full upgrade.<sup>[2]</sup>

- How to renew my expired driver's license?

If expired less than 2 years, visit NaTIS with ID, old license, eye test results, and fee—no retest needed. Over 5 years? Full retest required plus medical fitness certificate. Use ra.org.na/natis-licence for bookings; renewals processed digitally for faster service.<sup>[5]</sup>

- What are professional driver permit rules?

For PrDPs (heavy vehicles, taxis), submit medical report (vision, fitness), criminal clearance, advanced practical test, and vehicle-specific training proof. RA approves after verification; renew every 3 years with similar checks to ensure road safety.<sup>[8]</sup>

Roadworthy & Inspections

- Where do I get a roadworthy certificate?

Only RA-approved testing stations (not all NaTIS offices) inspect brakes, steering, lights, tires, emissions, and structure. Book ahead, pay N$300–N$600, get certificate valid 30 days for registration—essential for new owners, exports, or licensing.<sup>[2] [3]</sup>

- What if my vehicle fails roadworthy?

Receive a detailed defect report; repair within 30 days and return to the same station for free retest. Common fails: worn tires, faulty lights—fix promptly to avoid delays in other services.<sup>[1]</sup>

Permits & Special Cases

- How to apply for personalized plates?

Download form from ra.org.na, submit with motivation letter (e.g., name/business), current reg docs, and premium fee (N$5,000+). RA reviews for approval (no offensive words), then collect at NaTIS.<sup>[1]</sup>

- What's a temporary permit?

For test drives, exports, or breakdowns: apply at NaTIS with ownership proof, insurance, and reason; get 21-day disc/plates for N$100–N$300, non-renewable.<sup>[3]</sup>

- Vehicle stolen—what to do?

File police report (get case number), notify NaTIS immediately for temporary de-registration to prevent misuse. If recovered, re-inspect roadworthy, apply for re-registration with police clearance.<sup>[9]</sup>

- How to register an inherited vehicle?

Executor submits death certificate, letters of executorship/will, heir's ID, roadworthy, and affidavit—no transfer duty. RA processes title transfer directly.<sup>[3]</sup>
